HILL'S GREAT SPEECH. Senator Hill has won credit and honor by his brilliant speech of yesterday de-fending President Cleveland's action in writing the now famous Wilson letter, justifying and warmly indorsing the principles it enunciated, and criticising the course of the Senators who had yesterday, one after another, "detailed conversations of a semi-confidential character at least with the President of their country for the avowed purpose of placing that President in a false position before the Senate and the country." Senator Hill's speech has made a marked impression at Washington, and the more than a boy; had grown up in will, it is believed, be of practical benefit. Hints About the Corset.

Now, if a corset is laced every time it is put on it will give the best satisfaction. The corset must adapt itself to the walst for fit and form. The house dresses are always looser than any other, and corresponding ease in the corset is conducive to comfort and appearance. Said a skilful woman who only makes corsets for private customers: "When the trim street suit or the smart evening dress is put on it is the work of a moment to draw the laces tight at the belt and loose top and bottom for small waist, full hips and fuller bus and tie them in front, with the kno-under the skirt hook. This is the wa the French demoiselles get their ex quisite figures."

Tickets are 10 cents each.

A remarkably clever violinist, Master Frederic Ormonde, only ten Years old, astonished the audience by his marveitous ability, power and technique. Nora Sarony Lambert danced most gracefully and some may destined to be a popular New York favorite. Joseph Carey showed his powers of mimicry, and was exceedingly well received, while Max Franklin and his orchestra contributed various selections. Charles L. Van Baar proved himself a clever accompaniat, and the whole entertainment was voted to be the best ever seen at this fashionable resort.

The financial results were excellent and will be duly acknowledged.
